The Duke and Duchess de Talleyrand were guests at luncheon yesterday at Pierre's of Mr. Tyler Morse.

sixth street, yesterday afternoon.

A rodeo is not a circus, nor is it a wide West show. It is an exhibition of cowboy sports, a kind of field day, at which contests in steer roping, buil dogsing, horse bucking and fancy riding are the principal events. Such a rodeo is to be brought to New York. Each day of the rodeo, and for bind was a rodeo is to be brought to New York. Each day of the Argonne Association assumes work.

There can't be any fixing things up, at there sometimes is at a prize fight or a ball game. You just can't fix things up with a bucking horse. The contests are to be judged on two points: The bucking ability of the horse and the man's ability to stick on his back.

"Madison Square Garden is being fenced in with a nine foot cow fence to protect the audience. There will be no danger. I want to make it plain that this is no Wild, West show and that fresh, unbroken bronchos and calves rendered and will sail by the Homeric to never before roped are being brought on for the rodeo. And for nine days Western Association pony riding, steer wranging rules will prevail in Manhattan. A regular Cheyenne rodeo is going to be staged at Madison Square Garden."

The Argonne Aspociation was organized on Armistice Day, 1918, as a memorial to the American soldiers who died in France. The association assumes guardianship of war orphans and keeps and educates them at Beubourg, France, where the boys are taught trades and the girls stenography or dressmaking. The French people are also contributing to the association's funds, and the proceeds of the rodeo are to go to this work.
